DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

1. Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:
 - I. Claims 1-8, drawn to a method of ordering medical products over the Internet and requiring the allowance of a second user to request an order substantially the same as a previous order, classified in class 705, subclass 27.
 - II. Claim 9-23, drawn to a method of cooperative ordering medical supplies over a network and requiring a second client to authorize the order, classified in class 705, subclass 26.

The inventions are distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons:

2. Inventions I and II are related as subcombinations disclosed as usable together in a single combination. The subcombinations are distinct from each other if they are shown to be separately usable. In the instant case, invention I has separate utility such as it may be used in a system that merely requires authorization without requiring the allowance of a second person to copy the order of a first person. See MPEP § 806.05(d).
3. Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art as shown by their different classification, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.
4. Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and the search required for Group I is not required for Group II, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

Art Unit: 3627

5. During a telephone conversation with Michael Swope on 9/5/03 a provisional election was made without traverse to prosecute the invention of Group II, claims 9-23. Affirmation of this election must be made by applicant in replying to this Office action. Claims 1-8 are withdrawn from further consideration by the examiner, 37 CFR 1.142(b), as being drawn to a non-elected invention.

Information Disclosure Statement

6. Applicant submission of Information Disclosure Statements on 12/7/01 and 3/5/02 is acknowledged and each signed/initialed PTO-1449 is attached.

Claim Objections

7. Claim 19 is objected to because it is unclear if Applicant intends to claim a method claim or an apparatus claim. Claim 19 depends from method claim 9, but is directed to computer-readable medium which is an apparatus. Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

8. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

9. Claims 9, 10, 12, 14, 19, 20, and 22 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by U.S. Patent No. 5,870,717 (Wiecha).

Art Unit: 3627

Regarding claim 9, Wiecha discloses a method for cooperative ordering of medical products over a network, comprising: providing a database (24) comprising information for purchasing a plurality of products; transmitting information for at least one product to a first client from said database of products (see column 3, lines 10-28); receiving from said first client a request to order said at least one product (see column 3, lines 29-37); storing said request to order said at least one product (see column 3, lines 29-37); and receiving from a second client an authorization to purchase said at least one product (see column 3, lines 29-37); [claim 10] the medical products comprise surgical procedure products; [claim 12] the network comprises the Internet (see column 7, lines 35-39); [claim 14] said product information comprises price information and wherein said price information is dependent on a customer account provided by one of said first and second client (see column 3, lines 13-16); and [claim 19] a computer-readable medium bearing instructions for carrying out the method of claim 9 (it is inherent that instructions to execute Wiecha's sytem are stored on a computer-readable medium).

Regarding claim 20, Wiecha discloses a system for cooperative ordering of medical products as described above in for method claim 1.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

10. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Art Unit: 3627

11. Claims 12, 22 and 23 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Wiecha in view of Official Notice.

As alternative rejection, if it is held that Wiecha et al. fails to inherently disclose communication over the Internet utilizing web pages, then the Examiner relies on Official Notice that it was old and well known at the time the invention was made communicate information over the Internet utilizing web pages.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Wiecha with Internet communication as was well known in the art, because utilizing the Internet allows global communication, wherein increasing the potential for suppliers to contact customers.

12. Claims 11, 13, and 21 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Wiecha in view of U.S. Patent No. 5,991,728 (DeBusk et al.).

Regarding claims 11 and 21, Wiecha fails to expressly disclose an order comprising at least two products, wherein said two products are both used in a single medical operation.

DeBusk et al. teaches the use of medical product ordering system that discloses an order comprising at least two products, wherein said two products are both used in a single medical operation (see column 7, lines 21-22).

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Wiecha with the bundling of medical products used in the same medical procedure as taught by DeBusk et al., because ordering in bundles will help to ensure that all medical products for a specific medical procedure are ordered together and are available to the health care professional at the time of the medical procedure. In contrast, ordering medical products individually would have a larger chance of the overall order containing an ordering error.

Regarding claim 13, Wiecha fails to expressly disclose transmitting information for a second product wherein said second product is a substitute for said first product.

DeBusk et al. teaches the use of substituting products (see column 10, lines 18-23).

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Wiecha with product substitution as taught by DeBusk et al., because providing a substitute product allows an order to filled when the originally selected product in unavailable and thus reduces the time to reorder.

13. Claims 15-17 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Wiecha in view of U.S. Patent No. 5,970,474 (LeRoy et al.).

Regarding claims 15-17, Weicha fails to expressly disclose transmitting information to a third client indicative of the request for order by the first client, wherein the user at the third client may submit an order based on the order by the first client and may add a product to the third client's request.

LeRoy et al. discloses a registry system for shoppers to purchase items selected by another user (see column 5, lines 41-51), wherein it is inherent that the shoppers to add additional items.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Weicha with registry shopping feature LeRoy et al., because a registry allows a second customer to purchase a product previously selected by a first customer, when the second customer is unsure what products to order.

14. Claim 18 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Wiecha in view of LeRoy et al. as applied to claims 15-17 above, and further in view of DeBusk et al.

Regarding claim 18, Wiecha in combination with LeRoy et al. fail to expressly disclose using the products in the same medical procedure.

DeBusk et al. teaches the use of medical product ordering system that discloses an order comprising at least two products, wherein said two products are both used in a single medical operation (see column 7, lines 21-22).

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Wiecha's modified device with the bundling of medical products used in the same medical procedure as taught by DeBusk et al., because ordering in bundles will help to ensure that all medical products for a specific medical procedure are ordered together and are available to the health care professional at the time of the medical procedure. In contrast, ordering medical products individually would have a larger chance of the overall order containing an ordering error.

Conclusion

15. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to Applicant's disclosure.

Engleson et al. is cited of interest for disclosing a system for collecting data and managing patient care.

Boppe is cited of interest for disclosing a surgical assistance and monitoring system.

Art Unit: 3627

McCay et al. is cited of interest for disclosing a method for marking, tracking, and managing hospital instruments.

Henley is cited of interest for disclosing a system for provision and acquisition of medical services and products.
